SCENE IN L.A.

Albert Maysles

WEEKEND HANGS

Artists, collectors and party hoppers painted the town during action-packed L.A. Art Weekend. Local photographer Catherine Opie kicked things off with a show at Regen Projects, the fashion crowd headed to Agnès B. to check out portraits shot on the set of Harmony Korine's latest flick, and beer-swilling architects piled into the Storefront for Art and Architecture pop-up gallery on Sunset. Later, Japanese lovelies in maid outfits drew velvet-rope-length lines at Royal/T Culver City, while a select few went to Bottega Veneta's dinner for director Albert Maysles. —THE EDITORS
